Average Income down in all Regions in 2009

At State level average disposable income per person fell from €23,239 in 2008 to €21,356 in 2009, representing a decline of €1,883 or 8.1 per cent. A similar picture emerged at regional level with all regions experiencing declines between 2008 and 2009. The greatest decrease occurred in the Mid-East and South East (-9.5%) and the least in the West (-6.1%) (see table 3).

Of the eight regional authority areas, the Dublin region had the highest average disposable income per person in 2009. At €24,316 the average disposable income per person in Dublin was 13.9 per cent higher than the State figure of €21,356. No other regional authority area had an average disposable income per person higher than that State total. The Border (€19,233) and Midland (€19,345) regional authority areas fared worst among the eight regions.

The percentage premium of 13.9 per cent which Dublin had compared with the State total in 2009 was similar to that in 2008 (see graph). On the other hand the lowest two regions improved their position compared with the State average. Dublin was the only region ahead of the State average during the entire 2000-2009 period while the Midland and Border regions occupied the lowest ends of the disposable income distribution range for the most recent four years.

See Background Notes for the definitions of the various terms used. The results presented in this release at State level are compatible with those published in "National Income and Expenditure 2010".

Regional Disposable Income at NUTS2 level, 2000 to 2009 (State = 100)

The variation in regional disposable incomes which declined between 2001 and 2005 has since stabilised (see table 4).

At NUTS 2 level average per capita disposable income in the Southern and Eastern region was 10.8 per cent ahead of the Border, Midland and West area.

Greater uncertainty at county level

While the figures at County level involve added uncertainty they do nevertheless provide a useful indication of the degree of variability at that level. Only two counties – Dublin and Kildare – have had average per capita disposable incomes in excess of the State figure in each of the years 2000 to 2009 (see table 4).

At the other end of the spectrum the counties of Kerry, Offaly and Donegal have had per capita disposable incomes below 90 per cent of the State level in the four most recent years.

In line with the results at regional level the degree of variability between the county income figures declined between 2001 and 2005 but has since been reasonably stable.

Primary income plays a major role

Adding social transfers to primary income and subtracting off income taxes and social insurance contributions results in disposable income. In the counties of Meath, Kildare, and Dublin primary income exceeded disposable income in 2009 (see table 1). These are the counties with the highest employment rates as indicated in the 2006 census results.

On the other hand in the counties of Mayo, Monaghan, Wexford, Leitrim, Carlow, Longford and Donegal primary incomes made up less than 85 per cent of disposable incomes leading to a greater reliance on social transfers to boost disposable income.

Background Notes

Introduction Household income data were first published in 2000 (Household Incomes Regions and Counties 1991-1997 – Pn 8218) and the publication included a detailed description of the methodology used to estimate the regional values of the income components. Since then, results have been issued on an annual basis.

Regional accounts were first published in 1996 (Regional Accounts 1991 – Pn 3232). They were in respect of 1991 and a full description of the methodology used was included. A further set of accounts in respect of 1993 was published in 1997 with some additional methodological details. Results have been published annually since.

Revisions Revisions to national accounts data published in National Income and Expenditure 2010 have been carried through into these tables, as is the usual practice.

Household Income

Primary Income Household Primary Income is defined for National Income purposes as follows:

Compensation of employees (i.e. Wages and Salaries, Benefits in kind, Employers' social insurance contributions)

plus

Income of self-employed

plus

Rent of dwellings (including imputed rent of owner-occupied dwellings)

plus

Net interest and dividends

The last component is a net item, which implies that payments by households of interest are deducted in deriving primary income.

Total Income Total income is defined as:

Primary income

plus

Social benefits

plus

Other current transfers

Disposable Income Disposable income is defined as follows:

Total income

minus

Current taxes on income (i.e. Income taxes, other current taxes)

minus

Social insurance contributions (i.e. Employers', employees', self-employed, etc.)

National Income

The estimates for the State for the different components of household income have already been published in the National Income and Expenditure Report 2010 (NIE 2010). The other current transfer payments to and from households are included in this household income report on a net basis with social benefits.

Per Capita Incomes

The CSO publishes population estimates at regional level annually but not at county level. County populations for 2000 to 2009 have been estimated in this report by applying the year to year changes at regional level, shown in the revised regional population figures which were compiled following the publication of the 2002 Census and the 2006 Census, to the counties within the regions. The population figures for 2002 and 2006 have been taken directly from the 2002 Census and the 2006 Census.

Statistical Discrepancy

The official level of GDP is taken to be the average of the independently compiled Income and Expenditure estimates. The resulting balancing item, which is half of the difference between the two estimates is called the Statistical Discrepancy. This must be added to the income components in tables 1 and 2 to derive Total Household Income.

GDP by RegionGross Value Added

Gross Value Added (GVA) at basic prices is a measure of the value of the final goods and services produced in a region (less the materials and services used which come from outside the region) priced at the value which the producers received minus any taxes payable and plus any subsidies receivable as a consequence of their production or sale. GVA differs from household income in three main respects.

- Firstly, GVA includes the total profits of companies. Company profits arising in the State, which accrue to non-residents, are considerable.
- Secondly, the workforce that produces the GVA in a region may not live there and may bring their incomes home to a neighbouring region in which they will be included in household incomes.
- Thirdly, personal income includes items such as social welfare benefits and factor incomes from abroad, which are not included in GVA.

(Note: GDP and GVA are the same concept i.e. they measure the value of the goods and services (or part thereof) which are produced within a region or country. GDP is valued at market prices and hence includes taxes charged and excludes the value of subsidies provided. GVA at basic prices on the other hand excludes product taxes and includes product subsidies – see table 14).

Valuation	Value added is firstly calculated at factor cost , which includes all subsidies and excludes all taxes. Conversion to a valuation at basic prices is achieved by subtracting overhead subsidies and adding overhead taxes. Conversion to market prices is then obtained by subtracting product subsidies and adding product taxes (see table 14). Most of the tables in this report on GVA are based on GVA at basic prices. However tables 15a to 18a are based on GVA at factor cost. The results in this release are based on the ESA95 system of accounts which is now in use throughout the European Union. Results provided in earlier releases (up to GDP by region 1997) were based on the ESA79 system of accounts. GVA is one of the principal concepts used in deciding eligibility for structural funds within the EU.
EU Average	The indices of GVA per person in relation to the EU27=100 for years 2000 to 2009, shown in table 11, are based on the relevant position of Ireland as given on the Eurostat website.
Regions	The regional classifications in this release are based on the NUTS (Nomenclature of Territorial Units) classification used by Eurostat. The regions for which the accounts have been compiled are the eight Regional Authority NUTS3 regions. The Mid East region (Kildare, Meath and Wicklow) and the Dublin region are affected by a substantial proportion of their workforce living in one region and commuting to work in another. It is therefore more meaningful to combine these two regions. The definition of the regions is outlined below. Figures have also been shown for the two overall NUTS2 regions i.e. “Border, Midland and Western” region and “Southern and Eastern” region.
